Excerpt from Our Penal Machinery and Its Victims

My sole object in writing the following has been to call attention briefly to the character of our penal machinery and if possible lead others to examine it; feeling confident that, when once generally understood, improvements will be made therein which will benefit society and will greatly lessen the sum of human misery.

The very flattering reception given the first edition has led me to believe that some good might be done by giving this work a wider circulation. I have therefore concluded to bring out a new edition.
