If you love model trains and are interested in how these realistic images were created then you will enjoy looking through this e-book. For the record, I feel it is important to share with you the model railroad projects I did over the years and how it all came to be. These were historically-significant projects and education was all part of the goal. Looking back over the years I will say that I am very proud of building the models I did for the town of Cherry and Mendota IL. I don't know where I ever got the energy and time to do them, but I did. I think a guy has to be a little crazy to undertake such projects. Who else would have done this? I built the Mendota layout for free! They paid for the supplies. These models were done with great passion for history and a goal to replicate what I seen in the historical photographs I collected in the 1990's. The magazine publication of Model Railroading did four issues covering my model projects. It was very exciting to see my work in a popular Model Railroad magazine. In this particular e-book I have about 85 pages and all different images of the models and plus I have some reading information for those who want to know the story behind these undertakings.

The photographs below are in no specified order. I mixed it up purposely by inserting a few images of each project at a time. Near each photo is a caption describing the image. Once you read the story behind each project you will understand all the photographs.

One of my greatest joys was taking the model dioramas outside and photographing them in natural daylight once they were completed. It was like being in a time machine, and I had a camera with me to show people "I was there!" I wanted people to feel what I was feeling through these images. I wanted it to be the next best thing to being there. After all, the blue sky was above and the real sun was shining down on the structures; casting interesting shadows as they would in real life! It was in living color most of the time except for a few rolls of black-n-white film. There were a few times that people looking at the photos did not know if it was the model or if it was a real historic image. That was quite a compliment. I feel that the models I built for Mendota and Cherry were two of my best accomplishments in life. I have seen the joy on people's faces from young folks to old folks. It was an entire giving of myself and it brings me happiness to know tens of thousands of people have seen my work. I learned a great deal doing it. Read all about it in this e-book and you will find out how these historical projects came to life.
